

frontiers in finance online introduction video transcript

Welcome to frontiers in finance online. The online version of our magazine frontiers in finance dedicated to you as decision makers in financial services. This is the first online magazine KPMG has produced and we hope this makes it easier for you to access our insights into market issues.

This site, as well as letting you download the whole magazine, allows you to access individual articles that you find of interest. You can then share the articles with colleagues if you wish and in certain instances, you will get additional views from an author through podcasts.

In a new addition to the magazine, we are launching a new section called frontiers supplements. This section is exclusive to the online version and will cover topics of interest on specialist areas of financial services. And this will be updated regularly in between the quarterly issues of the printed version of frontiers in finance, so please come back to the site regularly to see what's new.

We really hope you find this version of frontiers in finance a useful way of obtaining views into what is happening globally in financial services.

And of course we'd appreciate your feedback so please use the website to contact us on this or any other matter.

Thank-you